

In my free time I have played with photoshop and try to understand every single tool. And this is a photo of myself that I have edit it while working on understanding photoshop.

What I learned:

doing project of your own to understand the new tools is a good way to practice. Also doing research about the tools helps a lot.

How I think it went:

I think until now it's going well. And practicing using photoshop has also helped me understand it more as well.
