

My team and I decided to make a notion where we can upload everything we need for the project every information and in notion you can see the when we have to finish something with date.

What I learned:

I've learned that you need to communicate good with your team members and know what everyone is doing I think by doing this your project will go smoother. Also having a calendar to see what we must have done by what time is verry useful as well.

How I think it went:

I feel like it went well me and my group communicated everything we finish everything on time that the notion had plant for us.
